

Civil Peace (1971)

- Title: Irony
- Shows Achebe as a writer and an activist
- Comment on violence and corruption within the state
- A story of devastation during war
- Finally, a tale of optimism and human resilience

form N_2
0.00002 %
10 Watts
 $3m^2$

Plot in Literature; Plot in Communication

PLOT IN LITERATURE

- Literature (imaginative communication) is about narratives/stories
- The narrative/story always has a goal or a conclusion (be it open or close ended)
- The goal is to convey a message/an idea/a situation
- This message/idea is always open to interpretation
- The goal, that is to communicate clearly, is reached through PLOT
- The more developed the PLOT, the more accurate the narrative/story/communication

PLOT

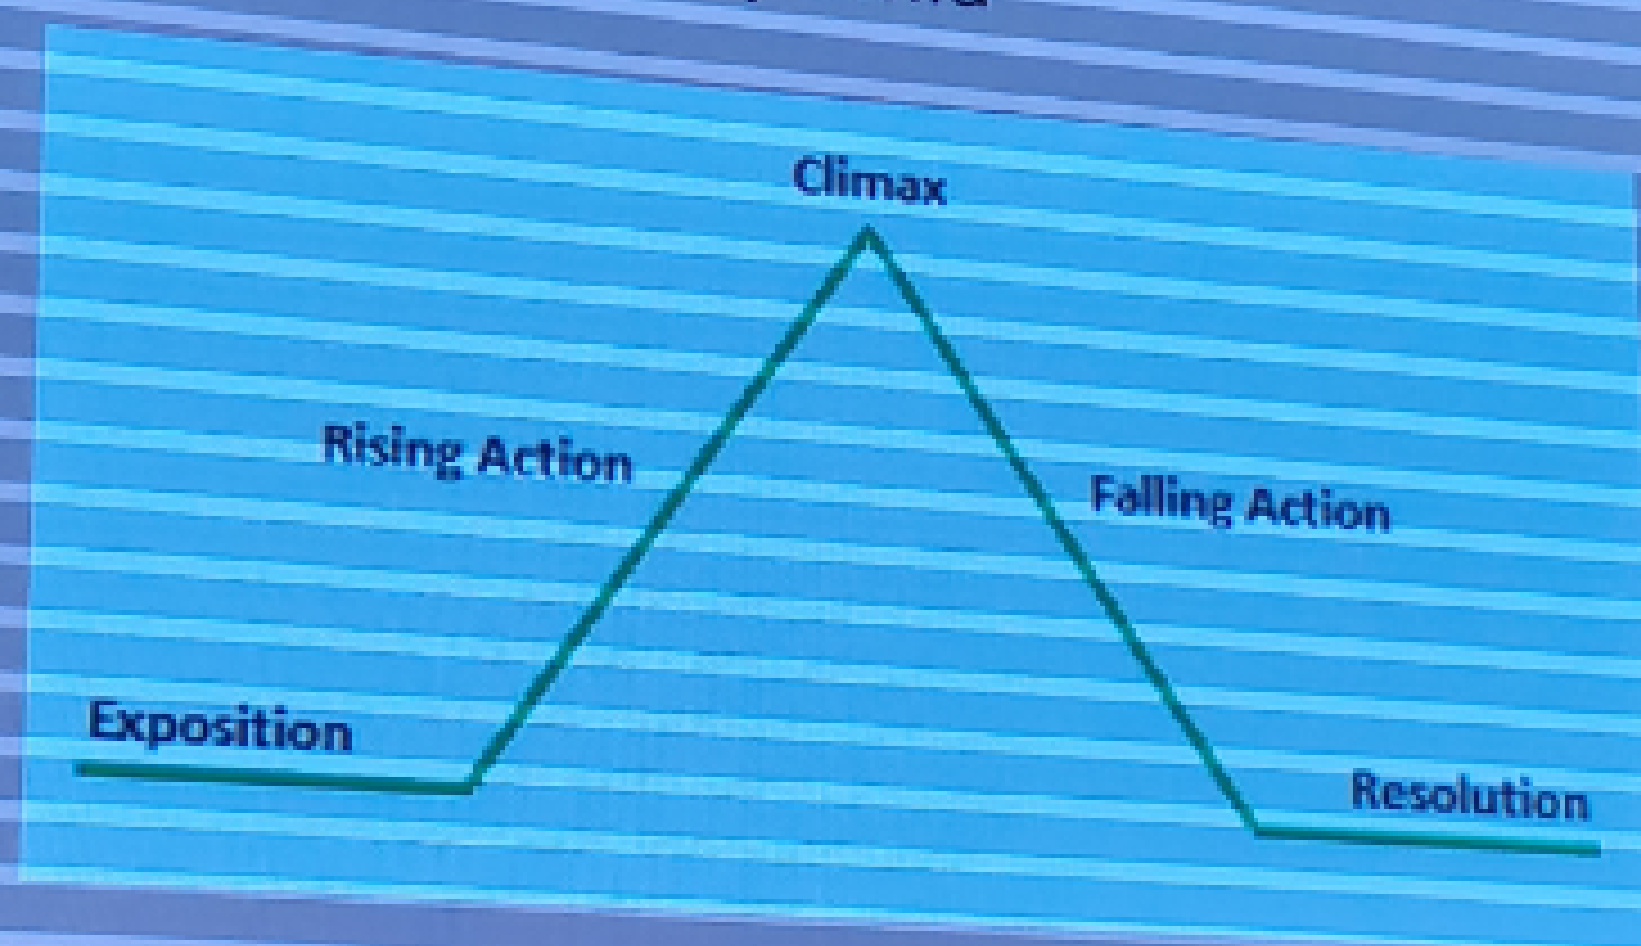

- The arrangement of events in a narrative:
 - a) The sequence of events differ from narrative to narrative
 - b) For example: Beginning with the beginning, middle or end
 - c) Creation of suspense/climax/resolution
 - d) Conclusion

Plot in "Civil Peace"

- The story's goal is to present Nigeria in a certain light
- The goal is to present Nigerians in a certain light
- The goal is to present colonizers' influence on Nigerian politics and economy in a certain light
- The goal is to present an emerging nation and its people in a certain light
- How are these goals achieved?
- Through plot or sequencing ideas and events
- Through language that communicates and invokes images

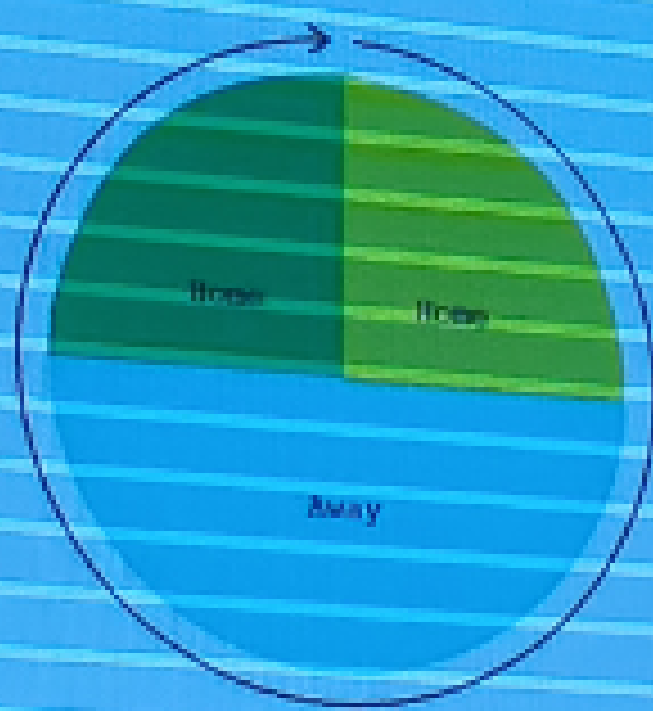

Types of Plots (images from free online sources)

- Linear: Freytag's Pyramid

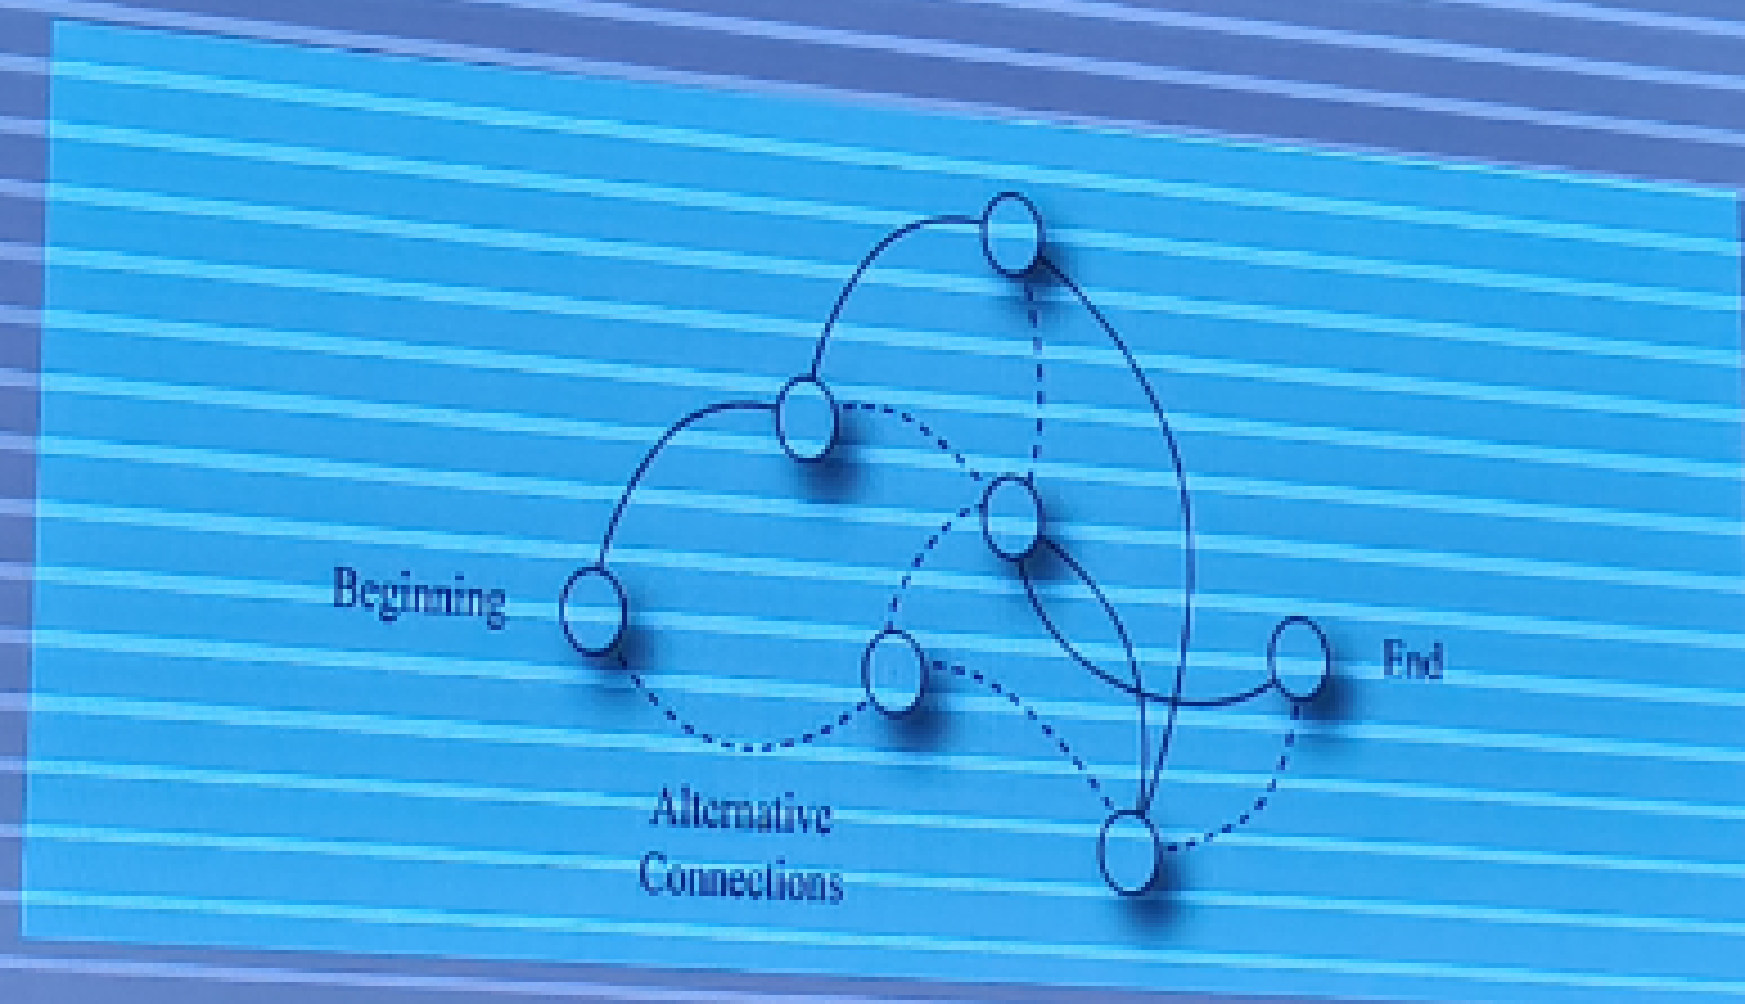

Circular Plot: The Hero's Journey

(Examples: The Ramayana; The Prodigal Son)

Non-Linear Plot: Many Epics; Contemporary Plots

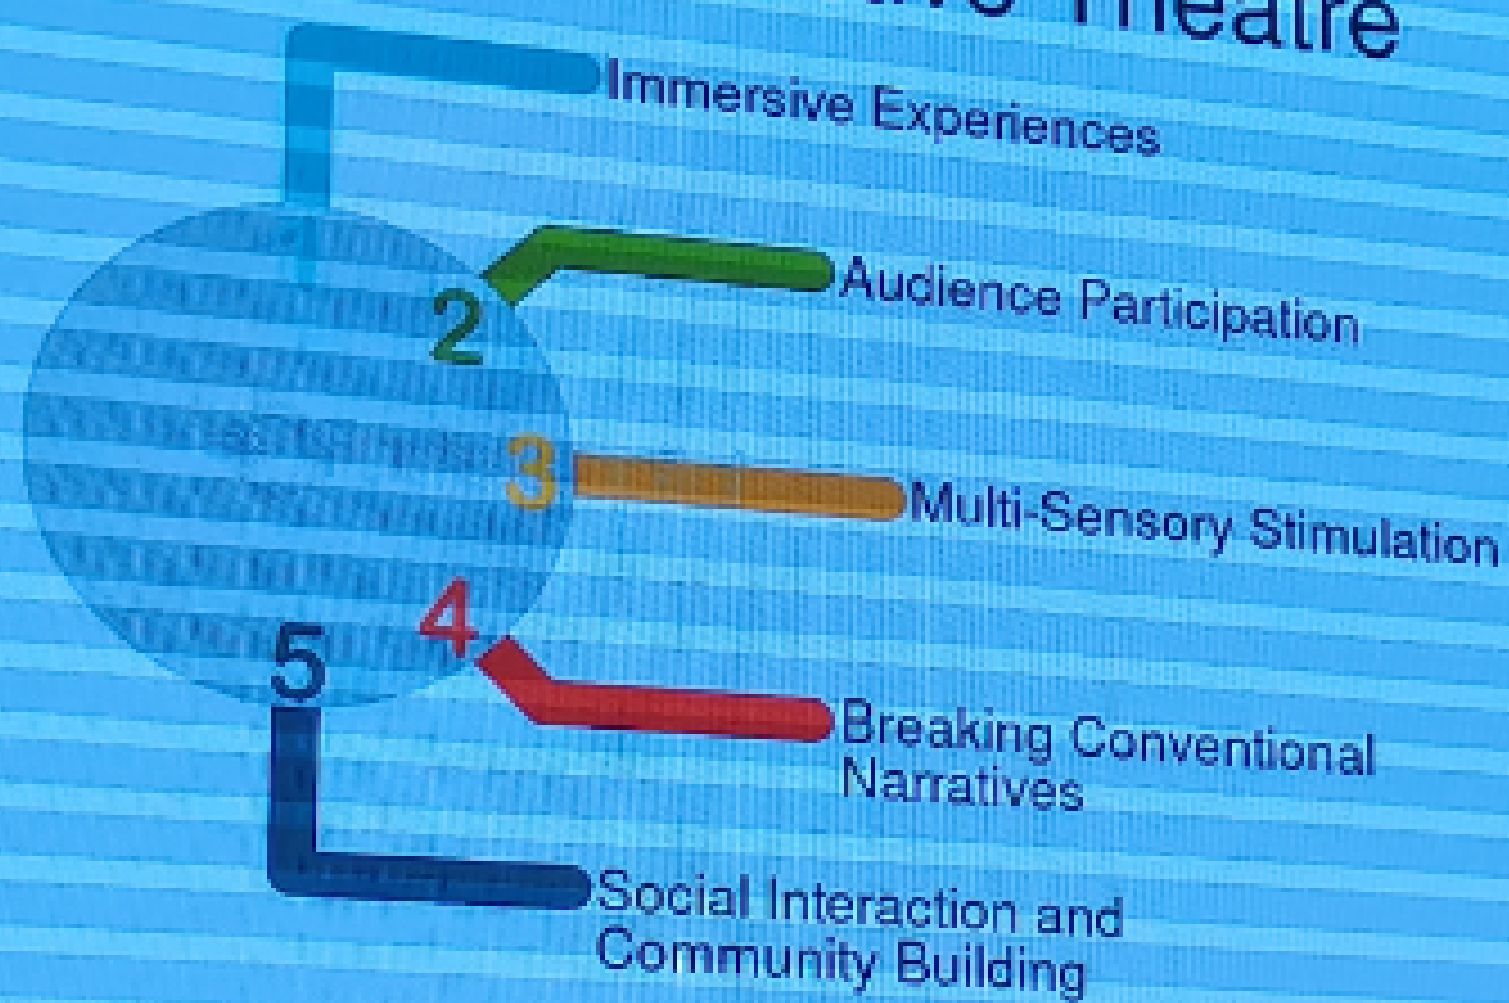

Open ended narrative plot: the end may have infinite possibilities instead of a resolution/catastrophe

Interactive plot: modern theater (breaking the fourth wall)

The Rise of Interactive Theatre

Choosing the right plot for yourself

- Your role and audience expectations
- Audience's requirements
- Channels of communication
- End goal